Customer Reviews

This is a story about a flea and a louse who want to marry. Various insects and animals in the field give them food, wine, song, dance, etc. for the ceremony. It introduces various animals, which is good. But it is a little disappointing because it doesn't consistently rhyme. The ending is also not very nice for a young child-the cat eats the mouse. The book has the music in the back for parents who sing.

Great book for Hispanic parents to read to their children. It's important to teach reading and your own culture to your children. Part of a collection.
